PROCESSES THE GROUNDUP TOOLBOX

a. From GroundUp

Introduction

From the GroundUp: Fostering Rural Youth Participation in the EU Agenda is a Network of Towns project under the CERV programme. It originated from a collaboration between Local Action Groups, municipalities, and civil society organisations across 14 EU Member States. The project, implemented over 21 months (January 2024 – September 2025), aimed to actively engage and empower citizens from rural and peripheral areas of Europe, with a special focus on young people. These communities are often underrepresented in EU democratic processes and considered less informed about European issues.

The European Elections 2024 were treated as a critical momentum – not only for European politics, but also for rural and peripheral territories whose future is deeply affected by European decisions.

The project recognised new threats to democratic participation:

- Hate speech, disinformation, fake news, misleading content
- Cybersecurity threats and conservative political shifts
- Resentments undermining trust in democracy

In this context, GroundUp sought to:

- Strengthen the role of youth in shaping local and EU agendas
- Create spaces for debates, dialogues, and exchanges across Europe
- Develop a toolbox of replicable methods for engaging citizens in democratic processes

By combining international conferences, citizens' dialogues, structured debates, and participatory formats such as the World Café, the project built both local and transnational platforms for exchange. The aim was not only to raise awareness but to transform young citizens into active participants in shaping their future.

b. International events & their content

Get inspired

GroundUp structured its activities into Work Packages (WPs) combining:

- Kick-off and webinars for knowledge-building and internal training
- European conferences (open to citizens and politicians)

- Citizens' Dialogues and Oxford Debates (with youth and decision-makers)
- Study visit to Brussels to get to know the EU institutional multilevel system
- World Cafés (ensuring inclusive, multi-perspective exchanges)

This multi-layered design allowed each partner to connect local-level citizen activities with international events, ensuring that outcomes from small towns and rural areas fed into the European debate.

WP2 — Poland

18—20 June 2024 LAG Dolina Rzeki Grabi

The first in-situ GroundUp event took place on 18–20 June 2024 in central Poland, hosted by LAG Dolina Rzeki Grabi. It gathered representatives of all 14 project countries and over 130 participants for a public European conference and a Citizens' Dialogue with youth. The meeting examined practical forms of civic engagement in rural areas, Community-Led Local Development, LEADER, and local participatory budgeting, while linking them with the 2024 European Parliament elections and the broader framework of EU values and democratic standards. It also included an internal Steering Committee meeting where partners refined the formats and topics for upcoming local youth activities.

The programme brought together national, regional and local decision-makers, experts, civil society actors and students. The CLLD expert panel, featuring senior representatives of the Ministry of Agriculture, regional authorities and mayors, assessed the impact of LEADER and the role of LAGs in shaping community-led strategies. Youth moderated the debate on fair and equal elections, demonstrating strong interest in democratic participation. Contributions by Prof. Katarzyna Zajda on Smart Villages and by Przemysław Górski on participatory budgeting offered concrete tools for strengthening local democracy. Partners agreed on a common set of themes for all local activities and a list of approved participatory formats to be used across the consortium.

WP3 — Greece

1—4 October 2024 TAG of Attica Islands

The second international event, hosted by the LAG of Attica Islands under the auspices of the Municipality of Troizinia-Methana, took place on 1-4 October 2024 in Galatas and Methana. Delegations from all project partners and more than 100 students from six local schools participated. The aim was to deepen understanding of EU citizenship, the rights of mobile EU citizens, European identity and belonging, and the influence of misinformation on democratic participation. The event combined a public European conference, youthled presentations, while partners continued project-planning discussions.

Highlights included expert contributions from the European Commission Representation in Greece and local political leaders, as well as analytical sessions on stereotypes affecting rural regions. Students played a central role by presenting their perspectives on EU citizenship and sharing experiences from European Parliament Ambassador Schools and youth parliaments. Inputs from specialists such as Clementine Diakomanoli on EU actions against disinformation and fact-checking practitioners provided a clear methodological grounding for addressing misinformation at local level.

WP4 — Sweden

5—7 February 2025 LAG Halland, Katrinebergs Folkhögskola The Swedish event, hosted by Community Led Local Development Halland at Katrinebergs Folkhögskola, focused on the question of how to create and maintain trust in the EU and its institutions in an era of disinformation, fake news and misleading content, in the aftermath of the European elections. Over 100 participants from 14 partner countries and the Halland region took part in a public European conference with a citizens' dialogue, followed by a study visit and internal networking activities for project partners. The event also served as preparation for the study visit to Brussels by deepening understanding of EU-level debates and equipping youth with arguments and examples.

The programme featured a keynote by the Head of the SBHSS Brussels office on the new European Parliament and Commission and the strategic challenges highlighted in the Draghi report, followed by a lecture on disinformation and its impact on political trust by a Fojo Media Institute expert. In a World Café, participants reflected on what they need to trust EU institutions in a context of contested information, and then moved into a citizens' dialogue where rural youth and politicians discussed digital transformation, youth engagement and the limits of social media as a dialogue space. The afternoon study visit to a LEADER-supported local brewery and a presentation by Europa Direkt Halland showcased how EU programmes and information centres can build everyday trust in the Union. Closing reflections stressed the importance of safe offline fora – particularly in schools – where young people and decision-makers can meet beyond polarised online environments.

WP6 — Belgium

7-9 April 2025 Brussels Study Visit

The Brussels study visit gathered over 45 participants from 14 countries to examine the results of the Conference on the Future of Europe (CoFoE) in the context of EU citizenship rights and to link local GroundUp consultations with EU-level policymaking. Over three days, the group visited the European Parliament, the European Commission and regional representation offices, meeting MEPs, officials and civil society representatives to discuss youth participation, European Citizens' Initiatives and the implementation of CoFoE recommendations. The visit functioned as both a capacity-building measure and a channel through which rural youth voices from partner regions could be transferred to EU institutions.

Key moments included exchanges with MEP Merja Kyllönen on parliamentary work, youth engagement and combating misinformation, and a session with the ECIT Foundation on citizenship rights and ECIs. Meetings at the Łódzkie Regional Office and with Commission services helped participants understand how regional advocacy and programmes such as CERV can support local democratic innovation. Throughout the visit, partners and young participants shared experiences from preparatory local activities (World Cafés, Oxford debates, citizens' dialogues) and discussed possible follow-up actions in their territories. The main recommendation was to better connect such decentralised consultations with structured EU participation tools, ensuring that insights from rural youth feed into future policy debates.

WP7 — Czechia

11—13 June 2025 Rychnov nad Kněžnou

The final face-to-face GroundUp event took place in Rychnov nad Kněžnou, Czechia, and examined how conservative political shifts, disinformation and social polarisation affect the quality of life and democratic participation of rural youth. Young people from local schools, local stakeholders and partners from across Europe spent a full conference day together, followed by informal cultural activities. A distinctive feature of this event was that local students remained with the group throughout the day, taking part in discussions, the World Café and the Oxford Debate, which considerably increased the depth of youth input.

The conference opened with a keynote on "Left-behind places in Czechia and Europe", focusing on youth challenges and opportunities, followed by a student-driven World Café on rural youth perspectives regarding depopulation, unemployment and disengagement. In the afternoon, expert inputs on conservative shifts in the political sphere, including the case of the Motorist Party, provided a theoretical and comparative framing. The Oxford Debate on the gender dimension of politics allowed young delegates to present researched arguments on representation, equality and power structures, strengthening their critical thinking and public speaking skills. Complemented by informal exchanges during a château visit and live music, the event fostered mutual understanding across regions and showed that interactive deliberative formats are particularly effective in engaging rural youth on sensitive political issues.

Inspirational webinars with experts

The project hosted online webinars to bring expert voices closer to youth and citizens. Examples include:

- Czech Republic (Feb 2024): Current political narratives impacting rural Europe
- Germany (Dec 2024 & Jan 2025): The Maastricht Treaty and rights of EU citizens mobility, living, working, and political participation
- Austria (Sept 2025): Transnational cooperation of youth and municipalities, with a special focus on new technologies and edemocracy

These sessions were open to the public, combining expert insights with youth perspectives.

WP1 Online Webinar (Czechia)

The opening online event, hosted by Sdružení SPLAV, introduced partners to the project's thematic direction and set the groundwork for coordinated implementation. The first day was reserved for internal work, focusing on mutual introductions, review of the partners' initial survey, and a structured training on Project Management methodologies and tools. Partners discussed how the project will work toward its expected impact: empowering rural youth in civic and democratic processes, reinforcing mutual understanding through crosscultural dialogue, and supporting local decision-makers in shaping long-term visions for European integration. The meeting also launched the idea of establishing a thematic Task Force that will jointly plan experts, formats, and content across the project's diverse topics, ensuring coherence between international events and local activities.

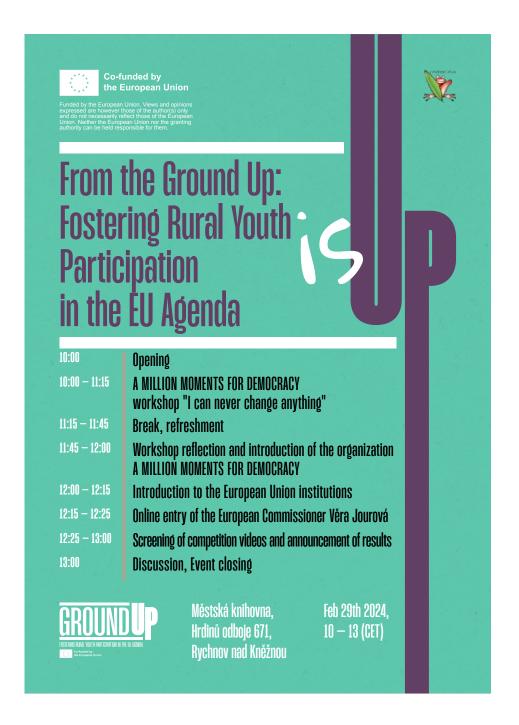

The second day was an open webinar addressing political narratives affecting rural and peripheral regions in Europe. Held in hybrid form—online for international participants and on-site in the Rychnov nad Kněžnou library—it combined expert inputs with youth engagement. The programme included a moderated debate on current political narratives, a workshop led by Million Moments for Democracy, and a lecture explaining the functioning of EU institutions. EU Commissioner Věra Jourová contributed a dedicated video intervention highlighting the importance of democratic resilience. As part of the event, SPLAV organised the "Vote EU" video contest for secondary school students, with 18 submissions. Project partners voted on the winners, who will join the GroundUp study visit to Brussels in 2025. The initiative encouraged early civic awareness and creatively linked youth voices to the project's European dimension.

WP5 Online Webinar (Germany)

This online event explored EU citizenship as a set of practical rights and responsibilities, with a particular emphasis on mobility, inclusion, and the tools available to citizens to influence EU policy. Designed for youth workers, educators, students, and local actors, the webinar examined how the right to live, work, travel, and study freely across the EU is implemented in practice and how these rights intersect with identity, diversity, and inclusion at local level. A central theme was the distinction between equality and equity in public policy, illustrated through examples from municipalities and Local Action Groups that apply human rights-based approaches in their daily work.

Participants were introduced to mechanisms enabling citizen participation, particularly the European Citizens' Initiative (ECI), as a practical instrument for policy influence. The agenda included a session on diversity management in local communities, highlighting tools and methodologies to prevent exclusion and discrimination, and to support inclusive local governance. The panel on "European Citizenship and Education" underlined the need to embed EU-related content into school programmes, with the "Teach Me Europe" initiative presented as an emerging model for structured citizenship education.

Case studies from Austria and Italy illustrated how small municipalities can successfully implement DEI strategies, while interactive exchanges encouraged participants to reflect on their own environments. The event concluded with an Oxford Debate (January 2025) on whether EU citizenship as defined in the Maastricht Treaty provides sufficient protection and opportunities for Europeans today. Across comments, participants emphasised practical insights on human rights, digital literacy, motivation, and critical thinking as key to strengthening EU citizenship.

WP8 Final Online Conference (Austria)

The final online conference, hosted by the Municipality of Irschen on 15 September 2025, marked the International Day of Democracy and brought together 120 participants from 14 EU Member States. The event served as both a dissemination platform for GroundUp results and a forward-looking discussion on youth participation, e-democracy, and the digital—green transition. Moderated by Martina María Linzer, the conference opened with reflections on democratic values, followed by a keynote from Mayor Manfred Dullnig, who used the metaphor of diverse herb gardens to illustrate how democratic systems thrive through care, diversity, and shared responsibility.

The project dissemination session presented achievements across all Work Packages and showcased youth-produced materials and videos. The keynote address by Adam F.C. Fletcher, an international expert in youth participation, offered practical strategies for building youth-centred e-democracy. He highlighted varying patterns of online youth engagement, the risks of passive digital consumption, and the need for municipalities to treat youth as partners in governance. His four recommended steps—listening to youth, supporting community hubs, ensuring transparent digital spaces, and creating long-term engagement structures—were repeatedly cited by participants as the strongest input of the conference.

A panel with representatives from Austria, Czechia, Portugal, and Romania connected local challenges with EU-level opportunities and upcoming funding programmes. As the event's outcome, participants reported increased understanding of youth cooperation and digital participation tools, and expressed interest in continuing collaboration beyond the project's lifecycle.

Oxford-format Debates

RESOURCES

1 Oxford debate guidelines - Oxfordstyle Debate The Oxford-style debate format offers opposing sides - Studocu

2 Oxford-Style Debate, Explained (Video) The Oxford Debate format was used in the online event (January 2025) and Czechia (June 2025). Unlike open dialogues, these debates followed a formalised structure around a motion. Two teams argued either for or against a proposition, with equal time to present evidence, counterarguments, and rebuttals.

During the online Debate, young people debated the motion: "This House believes that EU citizenship rights established by the Maastricht Treaty are sufficient to guarantee the inclusion and protection of all EU citizens across member states"

In Czechia, the debate centred on the gender dimension of politics and how gender affects rural youth's representation in decision-making.

Oxford Debates in GroundUp showed that structured, competitive debate can both sharpen youth critical thinking and give them a stronger voice when engaging with policymakers. The Oxford-style debate format involves a debate on a predetermined statement — also called a "motion" — from two opposing perspectives. The two sides either argue "for" or "against" the motion within a formalized structure.

- Debate:
- Purpose: The primary goal of a debate is to argue a position, persuade others, and win over an audience or opponent. It is inherently competitive.
- Nature: Debate is structured, adversarial, and focuses on presenting arguments and counterarguments. Participants aim to defend their stance and disprove the opposing viewpoint.

Approach: In a debate, critical thinking, logical reasoning, and evidence-based arguments are key. Participants often use rhetoric and persuasive techniques to make their case compellingly.

Outcome: The desired outcome of a debate is to convince the audience or judge of the validity of one's position. It aims to reach a clear winner and loser based on the strength of arguments presented.

While dialogue is about creating a shared understanding through cooperative and empathetic communication, debate is about arguing a position and persuading others through structured and competitive interaction. Both have their place in effective communication but serve different purposes and require different approaches.

International Citizens' Dialogues

The Citizens' Dialogue format was implemented in Poland (June 2024) and Sweden (Feb 2025). Unlike debates, these sessions are non-competitive, collaborative exchanges between citizens and politicians.

In Poland, the dialogue focused on election integrity – exploring why fair and equal elections matter, especially for youth. Local politicians and Members of the European Parliament (MEPs) joined to listen directly to students' concerns.

In Sweden, the dialogue addressed trust in EU institutions after the European elections. Young citizens reflected on how disinformation and fake news undermine democracy and worked together with decision-makers to propose strategies for rebuilding trust.

Citizens' Dialogues were essential in the project: they created mutual understanding, strengthened relationships, and provided a safe space for citizens to express their ideas about the EU.

Citizens' Dialogues

- 1. Purpose: Dialogue aims to foster understanding, build relationships, and explore different perspectives. It is more collaborative and focuses on mutual respect and open-mindedness.
- 2. Nature: It is usually open-ended and non-competitive. Participants are encouraged to listen actively, share their thoughts honestly, and reflect on others' viewpoints.
- 3. Approach: Emphasizes empathy, patience, and the exploration of underlying assumptions and values. There is less emphasis on reaching a consensus or solving a problem.
- 4. Outcome: The primary outcome is enhanced understanding, improved relationships, and personal growth. It often leads to deeper insights and greater appreciation of diverse perspectives.

In summary, while dialogue is about building understanding and connections through respectful and open-ended conversation, discussion is about exchanging ideas and information to reach a specific goal or decision. Both are valuable communication methods, but they serve different purposes and are suited to different contexts.

Citizens' Dialogue session is intended to offer a space for citizens to present their ideas, thoughts, and opinions on what the European Union should be. Citizens' Dialogue were widely used by the European Commission to address the disconnect felt by citizens from the political center in Brussels. Typically, these Dialogues feature a high-level politician, but in our case, we will focus on engaging with students and young people.

The goal of the Citizens' Dialogue is to foster a genuine dialogue with the participants, especially the young people. The event typically starts with an introduction by a moderator or facilitator who outlines the purpose, agenda, and rules of engagement for the dialogue.

The World Café in Sweden

A World Café session was organised in Halland, Sweden (Feb 2025) as part of the Citizens' Dialogue. The World Café methodology enabled small group conversations in multiple rounds, with participants rotating tables and hosts capturing insights.

This method proved especially useful for:

- Ensuring that every participant contributed
- Breaking old thought patterns and catalysing new ideas
- Building connections between rural youth and policymakers
- Exploring diverse perspectives on how to maintain trust in EU institutions

The Swedish World Café showed how this method can complement formal debates and dialogues by providing a creative, inclusive, and less formal setting for idea generation. What is a World Café? When should I use this method?

The World Café method is designed to create a safe, welcoming environment in which to intentionally connect multiple ideas and perspectives on a topic by engaging participants in several rounds of small-group conversation.

The World Café method is particularly useful when you want to be sure to explore a topic from multiple perspectives, to ensure that everyone in a room contributes in a conversation, and/or when you want to encourage participants to make new connections. The method can also be useful for gathering information from grantees and beneficiaries at the community level.

A Closer Look: Captured on Camera

To bring the project's atmosphere closer to you, we also filmed three short videos during our key international events. These videos offer small windows into conversations, emotions, and the energy that young people brought into each meeting. Through these videos, even those who could not join us in person can get a sense of what it felt like to meet, learn, and explore Europe together.

GROUNDUP GROUND WORK

a. Overview of Local Actions

Between mid-2024 and early 2025, GroundUp partners hosted a series of local activities focusing on the project's key themes: digital transformation, rural youth unemployment and depopulation, and climate action. These local debates, workshops, and youth dialogues provided not only valuable insights into the realities faced by young people in rural areas but also inspired ideas worth replicating. The main goal of Local Actions was strengthening local youth to collect opinions and suggestions to contribute to the future of Europe and their own territory.

Altogether there were 14 Local Actions in 13 countries of the EU. They were hosted by project partners locally, face to face.

Methods used

WORLD CAFÉ, CITIZENS' DIALOGUE, OXFORD DEBATE GUIDED BY THREE COMMON THEMES

YOUNG PEOPLE ANSWERED PREPARED QUESTIONS RESULTS SHARED AND COMPARED ACROSS COUNTRIES

b. Examples of Citizens' Debates/Dialogues hosted by Partners

Italy (Maghweb)

EVENT

Ground Up discussion – fires, rising temperatures and water scarcity

TOPIC

Climate action and environmental sustainability

SUMMARY

Participants expressed concerns about the intensifying effects of climate change, particularly forest fires and droughts. There was a strong call for more education, youthled awareness campaigns, and grassroots engagement in sustainability.

SUGGESTED ACTIONS AND REPLICATION TIPS

Encourage youth to host workshops in schools and communities about climate adaptation. Enable access to micro-grants for local green actions (tree planting, clean-up days). Involve youth in local climate committees.

Sweden (LAG Halland)

EVENT

Young people from rural areas meet politicians

TOPIC

Digital transformation, unemployment & depopulation

SUMMARY

A youth-led dialogue with local politicians explored how to improve the attractiveness of rural areas. Young people emphasized the importance of digital inclusion and entrepreneurial opportunities.

SUGGESTED ACTIONS AND REPLICATION TIPS

Proposals to improve business climate and access to high-speed internet. A campaign concept promoting "tranquility, affordability, and nature" to attract young families. Use local youth councils or school groups to co-design regional promotional campaigns. Link young digital entrepreneurs with municipal development offices.

Portugal (Municipality of Torres Novas)

EVENT

Digital transformation and youth engagement

TOPIC

Digital transformation

SUMMARY

An Oxford-style debate addressed the use of digital platforms in civic participation. Youth discussed the dual challenges of low engagement and exposure to disinformation. Participants requested clearer guidance on verifying information sources. Debaters stressed the need to "speak youth's digital language" through social media activism.

SUGGESTED ACTIONS AND REPLICATION TIPS

Include media literacy modules in school curricula. Support youth-run digital campaigns for civic participation. Municipalities could provide training on fact-checking and digital content creation.

Italy (LAG Prealpi e Dolomiti)

EVENT

From the Ground Up

TOPIC

Youth unemployment and rural depopulation

SUMMARY

Young participants discussed the rural exodus and how to make rural life more appealing.

SUGGESTED ACTIONS AND REPLICATION TIPS

Events and activities that highlight the creative, social, and professional potential of rural areas. Promotion of local coworking hubs and artistic residencies. Encouraging entrepreneurial storytelling via social media (e.g., interviews with local youth who started businesses).

Bulgaria (No Frontiers 21 Century Association)

EVENT

Citizen's Dialogue: Climate Action and Environmental Sustainability

Climate action TOPIC

SUMMARY Held at the local town hall, this citizen dialogue welcomed ideas for practical climate initiatives.

SUGGESTED ACTIONS AND REPLICATION TIPS Invite MEPs and local officials for joint workshops on climate policies. Disseminate eco-advice leaflets in schools. Launch green idea contests in rural schools.

c. Summaries of their outcomes and impacts at local level

Local events across GroundUp partner regions showed that young people want to engage – if given the tools, spaces, and respect. These localized activities offer clear pathways for replication and demonstrate that even modest initiatives can significantly empower rural youth.

Youth perspectives on digital transformation, youth unemployment and depopulation, and climate action and sustainability:

Digital Transformation and Youth Engagement

Social media - best when visual, short, interactive

Fake news - common challenge, hard to distinguish sources

Solutions - digital literacy, critical thinking, awareness over censorship

Youth Unemployment and Rural Depopulation

Job creation - improve business climate, support entrepreneurship

Campaigns - show peace, safety, culture, fun in rural life

EU programmes - Erasmus & internships useful, but not enough to keep youth home

Climate Action and Sustainability

Local action - awareness, clean-ups, inviting politicians

Debates - schools, municipalities, EU consultations

Role of schools - more environmental education, practical campaigns

Key Takeaways

Youth want to be included in local decisions

Digital skills and critical thinking are essential

Climate action is a shared priority

Rural regions should offer real opportunities, not just

special occasions

Cross-cutting insights

Desire for real involvement - many youth expressed that they don't feel heard, even if youth councils exist on paper.

Need for simplicity - several comments emphasized that participation opportunities must be easy to understand and access.

Mismatch between formal and informal engagement - young people prefer informal platforms (like social media or events), while municipalities often focus on formal channels.
